10. Pfc. Nathan Wright, Sgt. 1st Class Matthew Kahler, and Pfc. Ian Eads pause for a photo before going out on patrol, at Forward Operating Base Blessing, Nangalam, Afghanistan, in the summer of 2007.
11. Pictured here are then-Cpt. Matthew Myer and 1st Sgt. Scott Beeson in Parun, Nuristan, June 2007.
12. This photo is taken from the northern fighting position of OP Topside, facing to the north and northeast. Depicted here is the “dead space”, where the enemy attacked just below the terraces, approximately 5 meters from northern position. The building in the distance was used as an enemy fighting position during the Battle for Vehicle Patrol Base Kahler, July 14, 2008.
13. This photo depicts the southern battle position within OP Topside, established as a casualty collection point because it was the area most secure from enemy fire.
14. Pictured here is Staff Sergeant Ryan Pitts, April 2014.
15. Pictured here in Nashua, N.H., in April 2014, is Ryan Pitts, holding an American flag flown by his grandfather, Frank Krypel, throughout Chosen Company’s 15-month deployment to Afghanistan. Krypel brought the flag down only once, when Ryan returned home.
16. Pictured here in Nashua, N.H., in April 2014, are Ryan Pitts and 1-year-old son Lucas.

26. Pictured here is the northern fighting position of Observation Post Topside at Vehicle Patrol Base Kahler, July 2008. Sgt. Ryan Pitts, Cpl. Matthew Phillips and Cpl. Gunnar Zwilling were in charge of manning the Long-Range Advanced Scout Surveillance System, which is covered by camouflage net here. The system helps detect, identify and geo-locate distant targets.
27. Sgt. Ryan Pitts holds a bracelet he wears that commemorates the late Sgt. 1st Class Matthew Kahler, former platoon sergeant of 2nd platoon, which is taped over another bracelet (not visible) the commemorates the fallen of 1st Platoon, Chosen Company, who were killed Nov. 9, 2007, in an ambush. Commemorated on the second bracelet are: Capt. Matthew Ferrara, Spc. Joseph Lancour, Cpl. Lester Roque, Cpl. Sean Langevin and Sgt. Jeffrey Mersman. This bracelet prevented shrapnel from penetrating Pitts' wrist.
28. Pictured here in Nashua, N.H., in April 2014, are Ryan Pitts, Amy Pitts, and 1-year-old son Lucas.
29. Members of 2nd Platoon, Chosen Company, unpack supplies brought in by helicopter at Combat Outpost Bella, Afghanistan, in spring 2008. COP Bella was inaccessible by vehicle, warranting all supplies and reinforcements be transported by air.
30. Cpl. Jason M. Bogar interacts with Afghan children during a community engagement mission, in spring 2008.
31. Medic Spc. Laquan Borden (left) and Cpl. Jason D. Hovater take a break before heading out on a patrol.
